MARGARET CHAPTER O. E. S.,
 WA-KEENEY, KANS., MAR. 3.

WHEREAS, In view of the loss we have sustained by the decease of our friend and brother, Albert Gleason, and of the still heavier loss sustained by those who were nearest and dearest to him; therefore be it

Resolved, By Margaret Chapter No. 249, that it is but a just tribute to the memory of the departed to say that in regretting his removal from our midst, we mourn for one who was in every way worthy of our respect and regard.

Resolved, That we sincerely condole with the family of the deceased on the dispensation with which it has pleased Divine Providence to afflict them, and commend them for consolation to Him who orders all things for the best, and whose chastisements are meant in mercy.

Resolved, That this heartfelt testimonial of our sympathy and sorrow be spread upon the records of the order, and a copy thereof transmitted to the family of our deceased brother, and to each of the newspapers of Wa-Keeneey.

EDUCATIONAL EXHIBITS.

How Future Generations Will Profit from the Results of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition.

Unborn generations will profit by the World's Fair of 1904. The influence of this exposition upon the educational systems of the world will be such as to be felt long after those who attend the fair shall have passed away. The little red schoolhouse of the future will benefit by this influence no less than will the great university, for one cannot help but see in such a comprehensive exposition a light that will shine far into the highways and byways of the earth.

One hears quite frequently in these preexposition days the remark that the St. Louis fair is to be primarily educational in its spirit and tendencies. That the creators of the exposition have in view its educational value to the world, rather than its greatness as a mere spectacle for a period, there can be no doubt. They have entered enthusiastically, in every department of the work, into the idea that this exposition is going to be a great world's university, a school for the nations, in a sense more distinctly defined than at any previous enterprise of the kind.

Here, for the first time in the history of the world, there will be a comparative exhibit of the educational methods of every nation and state. That education is the source of all progress has been recognized by the exposition management in giving first place among the departments to education and in assigning to education and social economy for the first time at any exposition, one of the main exhibit palaces. That there was nothing of the after-thought idea in this may be shown by the fact that the Palace of Education was the first of the great buildings to be completed. The educational influences of the fair were in the minds of the creators from the first.

But outside the one building devoted exclusively to the branch of education by name, everything in the marvelous spectacle will be educational. One cannot find anything within the limits of the 1,240 acres of exposition ground a feature that lacks the quality of being instructive. Whether it be a ponderous engine puffing away in the turning of gigantic wheels, or the silent flame of a chemist's lamp aiding in the elucidation of the secrets of the elements, all exhibits and processes will teach.

In the discussion of vital topics by men and women of national and international renown, at the various congresses to be held during the exposition, there will be a fruitful source of instruction, the influence of which must be felt by the future. It is not over sanguine to hope that at these congresses new light may be thrown upon problems of the most intimate interest to mankind.
